

Movies

Coming Soon

Coming soon in October 2018

The Catcher was a Spy

Major League Baseball player and Ivy League graduate Morris "Moe" Berg (Paul Rudd) becomes a top-secret spy who helps the U.S. defeat Nazi Germany in the race to build the atomic bomb.

Leave No Trace

Will (Ben Foster) and his 13-year-old daughter, Tom (Thomasin Harcourt McKenzie), live an idyllic existence in the woods of Portland, Oregon. When they are noticed by the authorities, they're taken into custody and Will's parenting is questioned. However, it soon becomes clear that Tom is well educated by her father and that other than the fact that they were living in a national park, they have broken no laws.

They're given a trailer home to live in and Tom is sent to school, while Will, a military vet with PTSD, is put to work planting trees, but he's unhappy with this new existence. Tom enjoys going to school and doesn't have any trouble adapting, so when Will tells Tom to pack her things, she resists.

Sicario: Day of The Soldado

When the American government discovers that Mexican drug cartels have been helping terrorists cross the border into the U.S., they assign federal agent Matt Graver (Josh Brolin) to start a war between the cartels. Graver enlists the help of his old pal, Alejandro Gillick (Benicio Del Toro).

Alejandro, a former attorney, went on a revenge spree to hunt down the men who murdered his family, including kingpin Carlos Reyes. However, when Isabela Reyes (Isabela Moner), the teenage daughter of Carlos Reyes, is kidnapped and Graver orders Alejandro to kill the girl, he refuses and goes rogue, pitting the two former team members and friends against each other.

Uncle Drew

After draining his life savings to enter a team in the Rucker Classic street ball tournament in Harlem, Dax (Lil Rel Howery) is dealt a series of unfortunate setbacks, including losing his team to his longtime rival (Nick Kroll).

Desperate to win the tournament and the cash prize, Dax stumbles upon the man, the myth, the legend: Uncle Drew (NBA All-Star Kyrie Irving). He convinces him to return to the court one more time. The two men embark on a road trip to round up Drew's old basketball squad (Shaquille O'Neal, Chris Webber, Reggie Miller, Nate Robinson, Lisa Leslie) and prove that a group of septuagenarians can still win the big one.

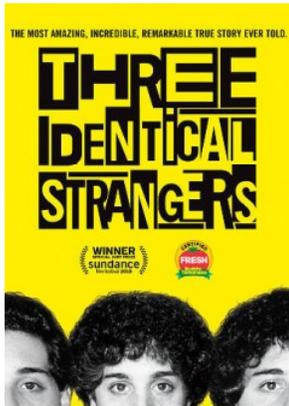

Hotel Transylvania 3: Summer Vacation

Hotel Transylvania owner Count Dracula (Adam Sandler) realizes he is lonely and decides it might be time for him to try and find love again after spending the last hundred years working non-stop. He attempts online dating but has no luck finding someone special. His daughter Mavis (Selena Gomez) recognizes how tired and lonely her father is and takes it upon herself to both give him both a vacation and a chance at finding love.

She convinces Dracula to accompany her and the rest of their monster family on a luxury cruise so he can take a break from making everyone else's vacations so perfect and take one himself for once. Although he's initially reluctant, Dracula eventually agrees.

The group indulges in all the amenities and activities the luxurious ship has to offer. Dracula finds himself attracted to the ship's beautiful cruise director, Erika (Kathryn Hahn), who reciprocates his feelings. However, as it turns out, she is the great-granddaughter of vampire-hunter Van Helsing, which leads Mavis to question Erika's intentions.

Three Identical Strangers

The true story of how and why identical triplets were separated and years later, when they were 19, these complete strangers named Robert Shafran, David Kellman, and Eddy Galland discovered by accident that they were brothers.

It all started in 1980, when Bobby Shafran headed to start classes at Sullivan County Community College. When he arrived, other students greeted him as if they knew him, telling him they were happy he was back. He thought it was strange, because he'd never been there before. Until someone called him Eddy. When they figured out he wasn't Eddy, they couldn't believe it. Bobby looked like he could be Eddy's twin. When they realized Eddy and Bobby had the exact same birthday – July 12, 1961 – they thought maybe the two were twins who'd been separated.

When local newspapers caught wind of this and published a photo of the brothers, friends of David Kellman contacted him, noting the resemblance of the two young men in the newspaper to their friend.

When the three reunite, they're catapulted to international fame, but it also unlocks an extraordinary and disturbing secret. It turns out that the three were the subject of a secret experiment in which identical triplets would be separated, but not told about their siblings. Raised in different families with different economic comforts, the families who adopted them were told that their children were being monitored as an experiment on adopted children, but not that they were triplets who were part of a psychological and behavioral experiment.

In fact, all three boys as youngsters suffered from separation anxiety, with David even telling his parents he had a brother when he was a toddler.

When the teens find out what happened, they're understandably angry that they were denied information that dramatically impacted their lives. And what's even worse, they're not the only children to have been experimented on.

Don't Worry, He Won't Get Far On Foot

After a day of drinking, alcoholic John Callahan (Joaquin Phoenix) got in his own car, driving by a man with whom he'd been bar hopping. The car smashed into a utility pole at 90 miles an hour, almost killing John. He came out of it alive, but a quadriplegic.

As John struggles to give up drinking, his support system includes his girlfriend (Rooney Mara) and his zany Alcoholics Anonymous sponsor, Donnie (Jonah Hill). Unable to move, John decides to become a cartoonist after extensive therapy allows him to hold a pen in his right hand. He discovers he has surprising talent, drawing macabre illustrations of everyday life.

Based on the true story of cartoonist John Callahan, and his memoir, Don't Worry, He Won't Get Far on Foot.

Eighth Grade

Kayla (Elsie Fisher) has an online blog in which she tries to help other kids like herself navigate the social ins and outs of being a teen. She advises other kids to face their fears and let other people know the "real you."

However, that's easier said than done, even for Kayla, who is mortified when she's labeled the "most quiet" of her eighth grade class. She considers herself funny, cool and talkative, although she admits she doesn't talk a lot at school. While trying to bond with other girls, she finds their attention is so far into their cell phones that they don't even hear her.

She has a great dad, but she finds him embarrassing, so she limits communication with him, hoping instead to be accepted by the kids at school. Even though eighth grade can be hard, she looks forward to next year, when she'll be starting high school.

Skyscraper

Ten years after losing his leg during the war, former FBI Hostage Rescue Team leader and U.S. war veteran Will Sawyer (Dwayne Johnson) has maintained a relatively safe family life. He now assesses security and safety measures for the world's tallest buildings and skyscrapers.

While on assignment in China, Sawyer and his family are invited to stay at the Pearl, a luxurious 240-floor skyscraper for which he's tasked to assess the safety. During a meeting with the owners to discuss his findings, he reveals that while the Pearl is a beautiful achievement in architecture, he doesn't believe it is actually safe in the event of an actual dangerous situation.

Back at the Pearl, a group of terrorists seize the building and set fire to the 96th floor, effectively trapping Sawyer's wife (Neve Campbell) and their children above the fire line. Sawyer works to get inside the building so he can save them but is captured by the terrorists and instructed to help them recover something hidden in the building that they desire. In order to convince him to help them, they take his family hostage.

Now, Sawyer must figure out why all of this is happening and rescue his loved ones while navigating through a burning skyscraper.

Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again

Three years after the events of the first film, when Sophie (Amanda Seyfried) discovers that she is pregnant, she feels terrified at the thought of having to raise a child. She reveals the news to her mother's friends Rosie (Julie Walters) and Tanya (Christine Baranski), and to her three fathers, Bill (Stellan Skarsgård), Sam (Pierce Brosnan) and Harry (Colin Firth).

The group reminds her that her own mother, Donna (Meryl Streep) was faced with the same daunting situation thirty years before when she became pregnant with Sophie. They then reveal the story of when a young Donna (Lily James) came to meet and fall in love with three suitors during one fateful summer in Greece, filled with love, heartbreak, and lots of music.

Never be without a movie you love.
Come to the desk for more great movie suggestions!

Strathmore Municipal Library

85 Lakeside Blvd
Strathmore, Alberta T1P 1A1
403-934-5440

www.strathmorelibrary.ca